Reflections from the Rev.

How is it possible that November is already here? Once again the church calendar will be getting very busy with the season of Advent coming up. At our last church council meeting, Fred Cooke brought something up that I have been thinking about: First UCC has been blessed with so many new faces over the last year or so, and although I am fortunate enough to know most of our regular attenders pretty well, the hour long service each week doesn't really give other congregants the chance to get to know each other on a personal basis. So we have decided to put our "name tag board" back up in the resource center very soon. We will have name tags for members and regular attenders to wear so we can all learn each others' names. This will be nice for our visitors to know who we are as well. It may sound a little silly, but I believe that people will feel even more welcome in our welcoming church when they can get to know us on a first name basis. Now when your passing the peace you don't have to say, "Hey you... good morning." You can call that person by name! What a wonderful problem to have and a great solution for it!

For those who are able to attend church weekly, do you look forward to your hour of weekly fellowship at First UCC? I know two little boys who wait all week long with anticipation to be at church. On Monday morning, "Daddy, is it Sunday yet?" On Wednesday morning, "Mommy is it Sunday yet?" I pray that God would help us to get that excited about coming to church and being with our church family. I pray that God will bring folks into these pews that are not only longing for him, but longing for community. Let us be that community. Let us put forth our best effort to gather in God's house on Sunday and bring others with us. Has it been awhile since you have been here? Have you been hitting and missing with your attendance? That's okay, we would love for you to come back. Hope to see you Sunday.

Blessings,
Rev. James R. Robinson

Water Walking

by Lynn Reimer

Several years ago I wrote on my bathroom mirror a quote by Neale Donald Walsch .... “Life begins at the end of your comfort zone.” You would think that I would have led an exciting life pushing the limits of my own comfort zone; but truth be told, that even though I read that quote at least twice a day and encourage others to embrace it, I have been lax at stepping out of my own comfort zone!

Fast forward to September 2017. When I needed to find a book for our 6-week adult Sunday school class, I went to the Bookery (Parables) to see what was available. The first title I reached for was If You Want to Walk on Water You Have to Get Out of the Boat by John Ortberg. As I explored other titles, my hand kept going back to Ortberg’s book. This was just what I, and hopefully others, needed to get out of our own self-imposed comfort zones.

The story of Peter walking on water can be found in Matthew 14:22-32. When Jesus invited Peter to get out of his comfort zone, Peter got out of the boat and started walking on water toward Jesus. When the wind started to pick up, Peter became afraid, lost his focus on Jesus and started to sink.

We, also, need to get out of our boats to explore the gifts that God has called us to use, but sometimes we seek to do this on our own, forgetting that Jesus is there to guide us, support us and keep us from sinking.

How do we get out of our own boat or comfort zones? Baby steps, baby steps. Ask yourself: What are my gifts, talents and strengths or what do I enjoy doing? While assessing yourself, pray for God’s guidance and seek other helpful opinions. As you persist, in time, how you are to use your unopened gifts from God will be made known to you.

What about failure? Are you starting to sink? John Ortberg comments on this: “Failure is not an event, but rather a judgment about an event. Failure is not something that happens to us or a label we attach to things. It is a way we think about outcomes.” Remember, as Peter started to sink (fail), Jesus reached out his hand and caught him and said, “You of little faith, why did you doubt.”

Get out of Your Boat. Water walking is part of discovering and obeying our calling....the water is where Jesus is!
